It's 1939 and David O. Selznick, the legendary producer, has stopped production on his movie, Gone With The Wind. He's fired the director and scrapped the screenplay because the story isn't being told the way he wants it to be. He pulls legendary director Victor Fleming off The Wizard of Oz and calls in legendary screenwriter Ben Hecht to rewrite the screenplay. They have only five days and there is just one little problem: Ben Hecht is the only person in America who has not read Gone With The Wind! Locked into Selznick's office with only brain food (bananas and peanuts) to live on, the three men hilariously manage to pull it off. With Selznick and Fleming acting out the scenes page-by-page, Hecht fashions the new screenplay. You'll love this rollicking comedy and you'll never see the movie the same way again! Patrons with severe peanut allergies should take precautions.
