In this charming comedy, set in the 1930s, we meet four sisters who have lived all their lives together. The time we spend with these women and their husbands reveals devoted relationships—complicated, as life would have it, by unspoken longings, fears, suspicions and outright antipathies. A marriage-averse son stirs things up by bringing home, for the first time, his fiancée of 12 years. As the sisters earnestly try to work out the ensuing complications, their efforts provide an evening of rich comedy. Originally produced in 1938, Morning's at Seven has had two Broadway revivals. Both earned critical accolades, including the 1980 Tony Award for best revival.
