In this interesting drama, two women meet and their lives become indelibly intertwined because of the request that one, the mother of a despot in Africa, makes of the other, a world-renowned eye surgeon. Blessing probes the nature of emotional responsibility as the women deal with the results of their actions in this provocative play. Were their actions moral, justified? They make life-changing decisions as the consequences roll over them. We hope you'll be thinking about May and Cora for months!
